

WHAT AM I?

"I am a small hand held device which is useful for keeping track of appointments, tasks, sending emails and accessing the Internet"

ANSWER

"I am not the most powerful computer in the world, but I'm am able to process much more data than the type of computer you would normally use. I would be owned by companies such as banks, electric and water companies."

ANSWER

"I am probably the most popular type of computer. I am too heavy to carry around with you so I usually sit on a desk. I am pretty powerful and can process all of the data and files that you would normally use"

ANSWER

"I am a very powerful computer. I can process trillions of instructions every second. I cost millions of pounds and so only a few large companies such as NASA can afford me"

ANSWER

"I am as powerful as a desktop computer but I have the added bonus of being easy to carry around. You can take me with you to meetings or around school. I have a touchpad for a mouse, but you can also 'plug in' a regular mouse"
